tunity of discussing with them personally the change of government. I made other inquiries in various walks of life and spent a fortnight in personal inquiry. I found the citizens of Dalias almost universally content with the present government. I did not get one objection, although I heard that one commissioner had proved to be not as satisfactory as the other four, and when elected he had been expected to be the best. All were satished. The Democratic chairman told me that he had planned to put a party ticket into the field at the time of election of commissioners, but that he had found that there were no available citizens who were willing to run against the present commissioners.

found the travel comfortable and quick. Declaring that he was in perfect accord with Mr. Braxton in all that he had said, he added that the South suffered no more on account of improper legislation surrounding judges than did New England, and that thinking people of Massachusetts stood for government control of railroads when the travel was interstate, and State control of railroads when the travel was intrastate.

was interstete, and State control or aliroads when the travel was intrastate.

Answering Mr. McNeill, President Ellot said that concerning the four-teenth and fifteenth amendments the North and West, as he understood it, would never agree to their repeal, but, he added, the North and the West were not only willing, but anxious that the right to vote should be limited with the understanding that in such limitation the right should be equal to all classes of citizens of the United States. In Massachusetts, he said, there were a greater variety of citizens than in almost any other State in the Union, and that it had been found that an educational clause was an excellent remedy

Fernando C. Ford, a well-known resident of the city and a retired tobacconist, was found dead in his bed Sunday morning at his home, 1008 Harrison Street. Death was due to heart discase, and it came suddenly. Mr. Ford retired as usual Saturday night, and he passed away quietly and peacefully. He had been in declining and feeble health for two years, but his end came as a great surprise.

Mr. Ford was the last son of the late Culvin Ford, a pioneer tobacconist, who died many years ago, and with

Under So-Called Political Bosses.

President Ellot was entertained at timeheon yesterday at the Commonweath Club by Messra, John H. Lyons, W. S. McNeill and F. W. Scarborough. There were present about forty men prominent in the political and divil life of Richmond. The luncheon, with speech to a recitation of the child was in excellent taste, was served in the main disting-room of the club, Mr. McNeill and divil and greater than the main disting-room of the club, Mr. McNeill and William L. Royall.

Mr. Williams as toastmaster. The speakerston, Mr. McNeill and William L. Royall.

Mr. Williams spoke on the railroad situation in the South Milliams and the history of railroads from the beginning to the present day, and showly had been common struggle for social and political in south Ground the Clul War the Southern States owned and operated one-third of the entire railroad mileage of the United States. He explicitly that the south was a many the war and after, in reconstruction days, the industrial hands of the South were fast tied and all enterprises were as the activation of the common carriers. Mr. Braxton talked in a most interesting way respectively to President Ellot, urging that trust are necessary, but that it is daily of the southern States owned and operation of the common struggle for social and pointed out that under the present day for the common carriers. When he are necessary, but that it is daily of the southern States of appeal, and the government space of the southern States of appeal, and the government space of the color of the southern States of appeal, and the government space of the southern States of appeal, and the government space of the southern States of appeal, and the government space of the color of the southern States of appeal, and the government space of the southern States of appeal, and the government space of the southern States of appeal and the government space of the southern States of appeal and the government space of the southern States of the southern States of the south

Indicates that You Need

Kodol is an excellent preparation for any trouble of this sort, caused by bad digestion. As Kodol at once digests the food, and keeps it digested, the bad digestion disappears of itself. It can't help it. Kodol will digest any kind of food—anywhere that it finds it. Kodol is made to do this one thing—and by doing this properly, it accomplishes wonders with ailing digestive organs. Whenever you have any trouble with your stomach, such as "heartburn," belchings, sour stomach, ctc., just take
